"While we are living in the present, we must celebrate life every day, knowing that we are becoming history with every work, every action, every deed."

—Mattie Stepanek

Dear %%Lisa%%,

It's June, which marks the busiest of times as the 2021–22 school year comes to a close. The past two years have presented unimaginable challenges. Those challenges have put immense stress on the system and the people in it—school district leaders, principals, teachers, support staff, parents, and students—for an extended period of time. The honest truth is many of you are dead-tired.

June has traditionally been a time of celebration in schools. End of year celebration is embedded in school and school district culture, as attention is drawn to the accomplishments of the children and young people under your care. You also celebrate the dedication and excellence of the staff, from the part-time custodians to teachers, principals, and district level leaders.

Many will say, "I just want to celebrate surviving the school year." And while that is the feeling many (maybe you, as well?) are experiencing at the moment, don't sell yourselves short.

What has been accomplished during the past year is more than survival. Schools and school districts have been a place where parents and students could find a sense of normalcy, safety, and routine amidst a world turned upside down. Schools have been hubs of response and recovery. Schools and school districts have provided a place for kids to resume learning, reconnect with their classmates, and restore relationships with caring and loving adults—a place to rebuild togetherness. Has it been fully "normal?" Has it been perfect? Of course not. But it HAS BEEN pretty darn good. In fact, if you take time to pause and reflect on what has been accomplished amidst exceedingly difficult circumstances, I believe you will see that schools have done some of their finest work ever, during the past two years. You've done so much more than simply survive.

As you celebrate during the month of June, seize opportunities to go a bit deeper this year. While the past year has been a rough and thorny journey, there is more to celebrate now, than ever before. Call out the work and accomplishments, with specificity, of staff, students, parents, and the selfless community partners who have come forth to help the past two years. There are amazing stories to be told publicly, as well as privately and quietly.

While the current climate is politically charged and deeply divisive, remember that the loudest voices often do not represent the community's position or attitudes about schools and the people leading them (you need to hear this; your staff need to hear it). I know it seems as if every issue is shrouded in controversy, that norms for appropriate discourse have been compromised, and people are constantly at one another's throats. Don't allow this to overshadow the effort and excellence that the past year has brought out in you and those you lead. You have, and will continue to, rise above it in courageously doing what is best and right for kids.

That, my WASA friends, is honorable work and it should be celebrated.

Respectfully,

G. Joel Aune
Executive Director

RULER

Training featuring Dr. Marc Brackett

AUGUST 2-3, 2022

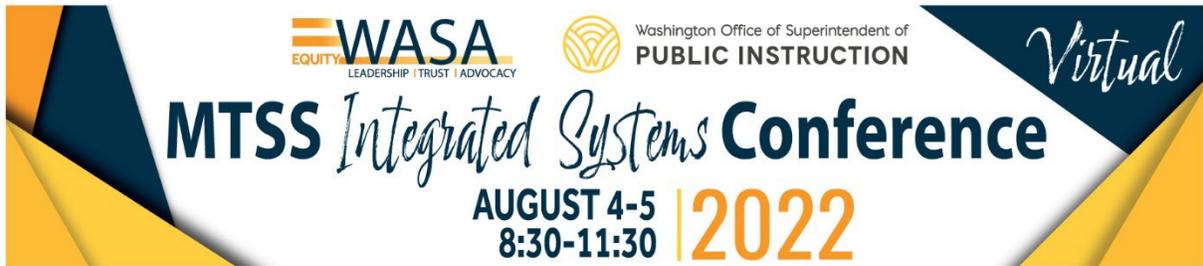

DEVELOPED AT THE YALE CENTER FOR EMOTIONAL INTELLIGENCE

SOCIAL AND EMOTIONAL LEARNING WITH YALE'S RULER TRAINING

August 2–3 | Four Points by Sheraton Seattle Airport South

Discover how to implement emotional intelligence by Recognizing, Understanding, Labeling, Expressing, and Regulating. Join WASA and guest Speaker, Marc Brackett, Ph.D., in the first RULER training hosted in Washington State. Dr. Brackett is an author and director of the Yale Center for Emotional Intelligence, which focuses on Social and Emotional Learning (SEL). Our professional development for district leaders starts with an interactive, two-day institute where district leaders can begin the work to support thoughtful and systemic SEL implementation. Superintendents, SEL directors, and other district-level administrators can expect to: understand the science of emotions; learn emotional intelligence skills; plan and devise ways to implement district and school-wide approaches to SEL; and brainstorm with like-minded district leaders.

Register today with your district team of three.

MTSS INTEGRATED SYSTEMS CONFERENCE REGISTRATION OPEN

August 4–5 | 8:30–11:30 a.m. | Virtual

You may have known of it as MTSS Fest in the past; this year's conference will be an MTSS Integrated Systems Conference, as systems continue to get aligned. By integrating our efforts, we increase the efficiency and effectiveness of our resources to better support staff and students. We're excited to continue learning together about how we can ensure our systems work for EACH and EVERY student from preschool through graduation. Registration opens later this month, but you can view information about this complimentary event

HAVE YOU READ THE NEWEST HOTLINE?

The WASA Hotline, published six times during the year, provides key information and subject matter of interest to WASA members. A good share of the content for the Hotline is written by WASA members and school district leaders—past and present. As part of WASA's 50th Anniversary this year, each issue of the Hotline also takes a walk back in time to revisit our proud history. Check out the most recent issue of the Hotline, as well as other issues published during the past year.

EDUCATIONAL EQUITY STATEMENT

WASA RELEASES FIRST-EVER EDUCATIONAL EQUITY STATEMENT

Last month, our new Educational Equity Statement was shared with the WASA membership. Adopted by the Board on April 18, the purpose of the statement is to publicly clarify our beliefs and vision, while reinforcing WASA's commitment to supporting you in this important work. We hope the statement will help start or extend essential conversations in schools and districts about the kind of leadership, culture, and support needed to ensure opportunity and success for every student. If you've not yet reviewed the statement, please visit the WASA website.
